AMUSEMENTS.

Grand-"Lady Windermere's Fan. There is no better example of Oscar Wilde's superb wit than is to be found in "Lady Windermere's Fan," which opened at the Grand last night for the remainder of the week. The lines recommend themselves more to the clubman, perhaps, than to the more prosaic members of society, who spend their evenings at home in the bosom of their families, but still any one can gather no little pleasure in spending an evening in the presence of a number of actors representing society people who converse as Oscar Wilde makes the characters in this play do. Wilde has taken hold of the latest fad with dramatic authors and fairly stuffed four acts full of it. Things which some have been trying to say for several seasons, and which others have hinted at now and then in a few tentative lines, are here blurted out with all the reputed brutality of the modern city clubman. It is perhaps true that the modern society woman, adept as she undoubtedly is in the art of scratching with her gloves on-sugar coating her rival to her face and stripping her to the skin behind her back-never spoke such heartless things of her sisters as Oscar Wilde does in "Lady Windermere's Fan," At least she never has said the same things so prettily. One hesitates, in contemplating the audacity of the author, whether most to admire or to despise him, and then ends by shrugging the shoulders and laughing

There is a scene in the third act where the play revels and gorges in Oscar Wildeisms. A number of presumably high London society men have gathered in the bachelor department of Lord Darlington after a function at Lady Windermere's. It is 2 o'clock a. m. Brandy and cigars are the accessories, and, as ever, woman is the subject of the talk. For a quarter of an hour these blase Londoners give themselves hour these blase Londoners give themselves to the caprice of the moment and cut loose on mankind in general and woman-kind in particular. All the philosophy of Ibsen, the bitter raving of Sarah Grand, the mockery of Balzac, the vulgarity of Fielding, the contemptuous badinage of all the modern school of so-called social re-formers, is here rolled into a brilliant dialogue of a few minutes, during which brief interval the much-flaunted permanent structure of Chrir ian civilized society is torn from its fc adation and brought tumbling to earth. . ' human nature is onehalf as rotten as Osc v Wilde here pretends to believe it is, then modern society is sev-eral centuries nearer the great cataclysm than even very learned students are willing

The fascinating language and brilliant wit of the play, on this occasion, makes up for a very great deal that is lacking in the manner of its production. Gus Frohman, whose name should in no way be confused with those of his two talented brothers in New York, has taken his brother's play and is now touring the provinces with it. He evidently classes Indianapolis in with the provinces. The work of some of his people, even in the prominent roles, is so sugges-tive of amateur that some of the most thrilling dramatic situations are barely saved from becoming ridiculous. The men are much better actors than the women in the cast, which is as follows:

Tribute to Ada Rehan.

Ada Rehan was the subject of an attractive magazine article recently, when an edition of Munsey's devoted nine pages to that famous actress. The article was illustrated with a number of character pictures of Miss Rehan, and was an interesting review of her triumphs on the stage. In "It is a tribute to the queen of the stage that we devote a large share of our theatrical department this month to Ada Rehan, traying her in a number of her leading roles. Miss Rehan's claims to the lofty, histrionic title we have given her are un-deniable. She is to-day the most versatile and accomplished actress either on the American or foreign stage. Her repertoire now comprises more than 150 plays, and in no character, whether it be of a giddy girl or the "Shrew," does she ever descend to the commonplace. There is an earnestness in her acting that magnetizes her audience. That a woman of her stature and age, thirty-four years, should be able to portray the effervescent young girl with such admirable art, possessing all the enthusiasm and 'gush,' is marvelous, and shows in contrast with her skilled depiction of the classic Shaksperean roles the wonderful range of her genius."

There is an erroneous impression that the seats for the Rehan-Daly engagement here next week are all gone. This doubtless arose from the rush for places on the opening day of the sale. Those who desire to ing day of the sale. Those who desire to attend can secure excellent seats at the box office of English's for any or all of the three performances.

A Phenomenal Soprano. Next Thursday night Ellen Beach Yaw and her concert company will be heard at the Grand Opera House in a choice programme. The musical world has marveled at Miss Yaw's wonderful compass, her voice having, it is said, a range of nearly four octaves. Her first tour last spring was a series of ovations. She is young, beautiful, her method is perfect and her voice exquisite in quality. Her critics are unanimous in her praise. She visits but two cities—Indianapolis and Columbus, O. between New York and Texas, being en route South. Maximillian Dick, the violinist, and Miss Georgiella Lay, the planist, are with Miss Yaw on the tour. Park-"The Still Alarm."

The first engagement of Joseph Arthur's well-known play, "The Still Alarm," at the Park was the means of packing that theater twice yesterday. The strong situations at the close of the second and third acts were received with much applause. The company is a good one, Edwin F. Mayo playing the hero, Jack Manley, clear up to the notch. Frances Graham Mayo is handsome and effective as Ellinore Fordham. The engine house scene, the quick hitch-up in rehorses, is a strong feature and aroused great enthusiasm last night. "The Still Alarm" will be repeated to-day and to-morrow, matince and evening.

Sousa's Band To-Morrow Night. One of the chief charms of Sousa's concert at English's Opera House to-morrow night, will be the singing of Madame Guthrie-Moyer. The critics agree that Sousa's singer combines a splendid personality with a grand as well as flexible voice and perfect method, and that her contributions to the concert stage are of rare excellence. Band and singer will contribute a delightful programme on this occasion. Sousa's marches will be heard as encores, and the great leader is very generous la that re-

Conference of M. E. Bishops.

M. E. Church opened here to-day with twelve of the sixteen bishops present. Bishop Taylor is in Africa and Bishop Ninde in China. Bishop Foster is expected here later. Bishop Thoburn, it is believed, is on his way to Washington, where he is expected to arrive to-morrow. To-day's session, at which Bishop Bowman presided was devoted to the reports of the presided, was devoted to the reports of the bishops on the results of these various conferences over which they have presided in the past six months. This evening the bishops were tendered a reception by Wesleyan College and the local M. E. Church.

Yesterday detectives Wilson and Kaehn found Robert Francis trying to sell a bicycle at a very low figure. Francis says he came from Louisville, and a telegram was sent to the Louisville authorities to see if he was wanted there on any criminal charge.

He Took a Snap Shot.

Washington Post. Among the visitors to Washington last spring was a kodaker from the West, who announced to his friends his intention of securing snaps at the White House children before he left the city. One day he spent the morning loitering about the rear grounds until about 2 o'clock his patience was rewarded by seeing the little ones come down the south portico steps accompanied by their nurse. The photographer had, in the meantime, scraped acquaintance with the policeman on guard, and, having flattered his vanity by taking him in several attitudes, he was prepared to wink at the theft of faces. The children came nearer, probably on account of that mys-terious attraction which always exists between nurses and guardians of the peace, and while the usual filrtation was being conducted Ruth proceeded to peep between the grating at the stranger. Everything was propitious. The maid's attention was distracted, the child in a most bewitching attitude, while in the carriage near by siumbered the latest scion of the house of Cleveland

"Snap" went the button, and the deed was done, and not till then did the maid turn around and find the evil that had been accomplished, for she had been warned against that very thing, "the amateur photographer," under pain of dismissal. Grasping the baby carriage by the handle and seizing Ruth by the hand she started off toward the house with a great shaking of her head at the naughty child, who hung back and wanted to see more of the man with the "black box." Meanwhile the much delighted pligrim had walked off with his treasure with visions of the fame that should be his among his far-off friends, and not until he got back to his hotel did he realize that the whole scheme had miscarried owing to a very reasonable cause—he had forgotten to take the cap off

Equal to a 2:00 1-2 Clip on a Better Track-Robert J. Fails to Do Better Than 2:07 in Two Trials.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 25 .- To-day's sport at the "Downs" was good and the crowd the largest of the meeting, between 5,000 and 6,000 people being present. The management of the association is very much elated over the success of this, the initial meeting. The weather was fine and the track slow. Flying Jib went an exhibition mile in 2:031/2, which, considering the slowness of the track, was equal to a 2:001/2 clip. McDowell experienced considerable trouble in getting him down to a pace. The time by fractions was: Quarter, :301/2; half, :601/2; three-quarters, 1:311/4; mile, 2:031/2. Robert J. also paced an exhibition mile. He broke at the three-quarters and finished the mile in 2:07 flat. Time by fractions: Quarter, :311/4; half, 1:02; three-quarters, 1:36; mile, 2:07. After wait of thirty minutes Geers sent him out for another trial but was unable to do any better than the first trial. #### SUNDAY LAW VIOLATIONS.

"Fair Citizen" Criticises the Slumming Tour of Goode, Ritter, Et Al.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: I have been very much interested in the newspaper and pulpit discussions about the Goode-Ritter-Hagerdorn tour of investigation of the enforcement of the Sunday laws by the police of the city. I am one of those "good citizens" who believe in fair play and in giving the devil his dues, even though he be a police officer. No one acquainted with the devious ways prepared and the many annexes and appliances provided for successfully violating the Sunday law would attempt to go about as a spying committee and seek to gain admittance to saloons without help. No one knew this better than the "gentleman" (?) who was so deeply interested in good citizenship, who gave the alarming information to Mr. Goode that "he could show him fifty saloons wide open and as unrestricted as any other business on Sunday (the gentleman whose identity Mr. G. so adroltly conceals until the court orders him otherwise.) He knew, and knew it very well, that Messrs. Goode and Ritter could not on their own account gain admittance to these places, so it was arranged that Mr. Hagerdorn, a Democratic ex-police sergeant, a man who had kept a saloon, and whom any of the saloon men would recognize as an habitual drinker, should accompany them in order that these nefarious saloon keepers might be deceived and permit the committee to lay a temptation before them to violate the law. Even the reporter who started out with these Good-e citizens became disgusted with this class of deception and left after entering three places and witnessing the glaring hypocrisy of these champions of Christian thought and virtue. The News, whose emissary the reporter was, in its endeavor to bolster up the practice of this shoddy committee, says "they have proved that the Sunday liquor law was not being strictly enforced, as the Mayor and police superintendent believed it to be." The fact is, as I read it, in the account given by the News on the 15th inst., they proved the very opposite; that is, that the laws were enforced, and enforced so strictly that they had to get an expoliceman and ex-saloon keeper well known to the liquor men to go with them to gain admittance for them. Read the account of their admittance to Eminger's. The saloon itself was deserted, but open (no law to compel its closing.) A German guide, with full beard, conducted the party through a series of locked doors into the billiard room, where liquor was supplied over an improvised bar of chair backs and straight boards. Will any sane man say if the law was not being enforced that such a route would have been necessary to get a drink at this deserted but open bar room? Again, the committee went to the Germania House. Entrance was obtained at a side door in the rear of the saloon. At this door there was "a beautiful little girl who stood as sentinel," etc., and directed the committee to the right door. The committee was made to stand in line BEHIND the ice box while being served. If the law was not being strictly enforced why all this precaution and the necessity of humillating this Good-e committee by making them line up behind the ice box before beallowed to "taste" thing? Good citizens, many of you want to throw mud at an honest endeavor to enforce law by lining up behind an ice box and buying the very liquor which your brother is prohibited from selling under penalty, and for which he must now be punished while you go scot free because there is no law to punish you, although equally guilty, as I believe, in the eyes of God.

The committee went to the Denison Hotel, and found the bar closed, but their infallible guide knew where they could be accommodated, and up stairs, in a private room, they were served. If the law was not being enforced why the necessity of climbing the stairway of the hotel? They could have the cordial down stairs at the

They then went to Moran's, where their appearance surprised the bartender who was supplying a couple of customers, "and not knowing the newcomers he seized the giasses and dashed their contents into the waste water." This Christian committee "explained that its purpose was to procure the same thing, and the bartender served the drinks all around." Was it the purpose to procure the same thing? They merely "tasted," and their purpose was not to catch the saloon keeper, but the police. If the law was not being enforced it would not have been necessary to deceive the bartender by explaining that they wanted the same thing. In every instance, though in but one as reported, the saloon was attached to a hotel or eating house-places which it is impossible to close The News in its commendation of the 'work" of this committee refers to Dr. Parkhurst in his crusade against vice and immorality in New York, but Dr. Parkhurst did not stoop so low as to partake of the vices he found but was content with observing what was going on. It is said it was not the object of the committee to catch the saloon keepers; they were after the police. Is it necessary that Christian gentlemen should go out on a spying tour, slumming under the guise of friends of a customer of saloons, to be guided through circuitous routes into hallways, up stairways into rear rooms to catch the police, when by so doing they admit that the police could not do what they did, because they are not permitted to thus become parties to the violatons of law? There is not a man or woman, even Messrs.

Goode and Ritter, but would condemn the police if they should resort to such tricks and thus make it possible for the law to reach the volators. They would call at once for the removal of any or all such to the Illinois House, south of the Union Station, with doors locked, curtains down station, with doors locked, curtains down and not a soul about. It would have only been fair to have stated all that occurred, and the number of refusals and places passed which gave no evidence of doing business, if they really wished to be just.

It is a fact well known to every unbiased mind that for nearly one year the 11-o'clock and Sunday law has been more rigidly enforced than over before and that a strict forced than ever before, and that a strict surveillance has been kept up, arrests and convictions had of violators in the Police Court, many of whom have been discharged on appeal to the Criminal Court. It will not do to conclude that because a committee, chaperoned by an ex-policeman well known to every saloon keeper, has, by deception and trickery, gained admission by "working" its way into nine back rooms, and been able to "taste" liquor, that the law is not being enforced. It is known to every observer that every saloon keeper purposing to violate the law on Sunday has his man posted on the outside, and no one not known can approach the door. Even when the door is reached a wicket is opened by means of a slide, in which there is a hole about one-eighth of an inch in size, through which the saloon keeper looks to be assured that the man applying is all right; if not known to be a customer, or with one who is a customer, he cannot get in. The police certainly are not admitted, and even if they were admitted they can do nothing unless they see a sale made, and no sales are made unless made to all inside. The superintendent save in his inside. The superintendent says in his in-terview "that the officers are not permitted to buy drinks to catch the saloon keeper," and if they did and were to "taste," as did this committee, the Good Citizens' League would be the first to hold up its League would be the first to hold up its hands in horror because a policeman had taken a drink on duty. The committee is commended by a few for "tasting," not to catch the saloon keeper, but the police in dereliction of duty, while the policeman is not permitted to "taste" in order to catch the saloon keeper. I admire the Christian independence of Rev. Mr. Milburn in that he quickly comes to the front to show that the Christian Church is not in sympathy with such methods, but even in sympathy with such methods, but even he must come in for his share of criti-cism and ridicule because he dares from the pulpit condemn in the name of true Christianity and good citizenship such de-ception. Because theft, burglary, arson, drunkenness and other violations of law are discovered daily it will not do to con-clude that the officers of the law are not endeavoring to enforce the law against the same and parade the fact before the world with a brass band. Men might as well go out and induce others to steal, etc., to be able to prove that the officers of the law believes that, so long as liquor is made, so long will men drink it, but I believe the sale can be so restricted as to make it unprofitable, and that it is quite possible, under existing laws, to reduce the violations of the Sunday law to a minimum, as we As to the results of the slumming committee, instead of being beneficial they will only enable the saloon keeper to devise more adroit means of deceiving the offi-cers and will put more efficient obstacles in the way of them entering the places and keeping up their surveillance. The other result is that the Good Citizenship Indianapolis, Oct. 25. movement has been brought into ridicule.

WAR AGAINST DUDES.

How Anaconda Hopes to Deprive Helena of Montana's Capital. W. E. Curtis, in Chicago Record.

The good people of Montana are all torn up this fall by one of the bitterest, as well as the most unique, political contests that ever occurred in this country. There is a State ticket to elect and county officers everywhere, and a legislature that is to choose two members of the United States Senate, but those responsibilities are attracting little attention. The brains, the passions and the greed of the entire population are absorbed in a struggle over the location of the capital of the State, which the most wealthy and corrupt corporation within its limits has determined to transfer, as a real-estate speculation, from the largest and most suitable city to a little min-ing town called Anaconda, in the Bitter Root mountains. Helena became the capi tal of the Territory in 1847 and the Legisla ture has met there by common consent ever since the admission of Montana into the Union. Two years ago a vote of the people was taken to decide upon a permanent capital. There were seven cities in the race, but none of them received a majority, and it was decided that the two highest, which were Helena and Anaconda, should fight it out this fall. In 1892 Helena received 14,010 votes, Anaconda 10,183, Butte 7,752, Bozeman 7,685, Great Falls 5,042, Deer Lodge 983 and Boulder 295. The struggle nominally is between the people on the two sides of the mountains. Boulder, Bozeman and Great Falls, with Helena, are on the eastern slope of the divide, and in 1892 they received votes enough to have carried the contest if they had been united. The most clever and effective campaign document is a handsomely printed and illustrated pamphlet bound in embossed covers, which purports to be intended to demonstrate the attractions of Helena for fashionable folk. It is entitled, "Helena's Social Supremacy. The sumptuous homes of the aristocracy; the elegance, refinement and intellectual superiority of the people; the dinner par-ties, high teas and bails; the fine dresses of the ladies and their idle and luxurious life: the beautiful garments of the children; the adherence of the people to fashionable changes in raiment; the number of liveried servants; the French nurses and professionai cooks that are employed are described in glowing colors and in just the right way to excite the prejudice and antagonism of the hard-worked farmer and miner and the rest of the voters who wear hob-nailed shoes and flannel shirts. There are some interesting statistics showing the number of silk stockings, kid gloves, silk hats, Havana cigars, Turkish cigarettes and other luxuries that are sold each month in Helena; the trade in books, fine pictures, pianos and confections. There are graphic descriptions of some of the handsomest residences and the clubs, of which every resident of Helena is justly

In the same pages Anaconda is sneered at as a dirty mining camp, where the men smoke pipes, chew plug tobacco, drink whisky and use bad grammar. It is argued in the comparison that the capital should go to Helena because it is the only aristocratic city in the State that leads in fashlon, culture and art, while Anaconda is exclusively peopled by common working-men, without money or manners. And to cap the climax a statistical table is given showing a difference in the customs and habits of the two cities. The following are some of the figures:

Helena. conda. Men who wear silk hats......2,625 Men who wear silk night shirts.2,910 The men who don't wear night 4,028 Champagne, daily consumption (quarts) ......1,245 Beer, daily consumption (quarts) ......4,088 8,854 Ladies who nurse their own Ladies who do their own work per family..... Four-in-hand turnouts...... 112 Men who have dress suits....8,658 Strange as it may appear, the general impression is that this sort of campaign work is going to win, and that the capital of Montana will be taken from the most beautiful city in the State to a mining town which cannot be reached from any direction without charging cars and which has nothing to recommend it except the money of the man who owns the real estate. I

SAVING MANY LIVES

NEW REMEDY FOR DIPHTHERIA AND CROUP PRAISED BY A CONSUL.

The committee says nothing of the many saloons passed on its way from the Denison Dr. Chancellor's Report on the Use of Antitoxine - Almost a Smallpox Panie at the National Capital.

> WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.-The new treatment by inoculation for diphtheria and croup, as practiced in France, is the subject of a special report to the State Department by United States Consul C. W. Chancellor, at Havre. He says that by this method of treatment only one out of four diphtheretic patients succumb, wheras the figure is double for other methods of treatment heretofore applied. Consequently the consul, who is a Baltimore physician of repute, says that it would seem very desirable that the anti-diphtheretic serum should be introduced and come into general use at the earliest period practicable in America, where many thousand children and numerous physicians, students and nurses die annually from diphtheria and croup. The consul gives in detail a history of the development of the treatment by Dr. Pasteur and his assistant, Dr. Roux, who have been experimenting with it for five years, keeping it secret until they had satisfied themselves of its efficiency and had subjected the animal (the horse) best adapted to transform diphtheretic poison into an antitoxine.

> A trial of the new treatment at one of the largest children's hospitals of Paris re-sulted in reducing the death rate from diphtheria from 51.70 per cent. to 24.33 per cent. In addition, it is stated that children vaccinated with the serum were protected from the disease even while living in close contact with diphtheretic patients. As the Pasteur Institute cannot meet the great demand for the serum movements are on foot in different localities to establish auxiliary stations. In slight cases one injection of the serum is sufficient, while the ordinary case yields to two.

Smallpox Scare at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 .- There were no new cases of smallpox reported here today. The health authorities are using their utmost endeavors to prevent an epidemic. The news of the spread of the disease has caused considerable alarm, and it is estimated that over five thousand people were vaccinated to-day. All the public and private doctors were besieged by applications for vaccination, and there was a scarcity of vaccine points. Several large firms had all their employes vaccinated. Dr. Warring, superintendent of the colored schools for the Eighth district, reported that several colored children who had been exposed to the contagion had been dismissed from the school. The children are on the streets, however, and the local authorities have no law to keep them within doors. Superintendent Warring has also dismissed from school all children who have not been vaccinated within the last five years.

An agent of the health department visited the Interior Department, and at his request Secretary Smith issued an order requiring all employes to be vaccinated. It directed physicians from the Pension Of-fice to vaccinate all who did not choose to be treated by other physicians. The employes of the department were in a considerable panic to-day, and many persons absented themselves from the building their scare being due to the fact that three of the smallpox victims are employed in the Interior Department. This afternoon an order was issued closing all the rooms in which the persons afflicted with small-pox worked, and all persons engaged in the rooms have been given leave of absence and orders to stay away from the depart-

Don't Want Their Children Educated. DENVER, Col., Oct. 25.-General McCook has not as yet received any official information of the reported trouble with In-dians in Arizona, but if called upon he will restore order in a very short time. "The outbreak is among the Moqui Indians," he said. "They are descendants of the Aztecs and are opposed to allowing the government to educate their children. As there are not over four hundred of them, the trouble will not amount to anything." The General stated that their children are not taken from them, but schools are provided under the charge of Superintendent Hertzog.

husband, No. 1063 North Mississippi street, Oct. 25, 1894, Mrs. Samuel L. Johnson. Fun-eral, Saturday, Oct. 27, at 2 o'clock p. m. Mrs. Johnson was the daughter of the late Ben. W. Davis for many years one of the editors and proprietors of the Richmond (Ind.) Palladium, and, like her mother, fell the victim of that fell destroyer, consumption. She has been a sufferer for a number of years and yielded to the inevitable when her strength was exhausted. Mrs. Johnson was a woman of great energy and strength of character, a latinium wife and a kind and affectionate mother. Her purposes were good and she had a large circle of friends, especially at Richmond, her old home. The memory of a good woman is as imperishable as the stars, and she who gives to her family and friends her best service, according to the light that she has, does all that is permitted to her, and deserves the respect and love of all good people. Her husband and two children survive her.
